In economics, Okun's law (named after Arthur Melvin Okun, who proposed the relationship in 1962) is an empirically observed relationship between unemployment and losses in a country's production. The "gap version" states that for every 1% increase in the unemployment rate, a country's GDP will be roughly an additional 2% lower than its potential GDP. The "difference version" describes the ...

Procyclical and countercyclical variables are variables that fluctuate in a way that is positively or negatively correlated with fluctuations in gross domestic product (GDP). The scope of the concept may differ between the context of business cycle theory and that of economic policy "making". The concept is often encountered in the context of a government's approach to spending and taxation.
